

ABSTRACT

A device for the transfer of heat away from a heat source comprising 5 a base having first and second surfaces a plurality of fins extending adjacent to the second surface of the base. The base further including a chamber disposed between the first surface and the second surface of the base. The chamber further including a divider disposed therein adjacent the first surface. A pump is also disposed within the chamber to circulate fluid 10 within the chamber.